Children ages 5 and up are invited to join the Mount Airy Museum of Regional History for a week-long Hands-on History Summer Camp July 18-22. This year's theme will be Pioneer Life in the Hollows.

Matt Edwards, executive director for the museum, said he is excited about this year's camp because it will be a hands-on camp for kids that will expose them to what life would have been like for early settlers to the Hollows.

Read more: Mount Airy News - Museum camp to expose kids to pioneer life